she could easily haul a couple of men in a wagon over a rough country road fitty miles in twelve hours, and when she was 7 years old it was all a strong man could do to hold her in the road. She always wanted to run, disdaining a trot or walk, and to-day, at the age of 27, she is, when hitched up, as wild as a colt. She has never been trained for the track, and nobody knows how fast she could go if driven for speed. All her life she has done farm work in summer and hauled logs in winter, and yet she is full of snap, and with the exception of a couple of wind puffs, sound and smooth. She is a sorrel, with white face.

Demilly, Mr. Bailey Mathis and Willie Inventions of Interest and Importance in Walker. These gentlemen met with a singular adventure, which, perhaps, will not occur again in the next decade. While out in the bay fishing one day they espied a large gray eagle flying directly toward them. Not thinking that the "national queen" would condescend to make war on her humble subjects they quietly continued to throw out their lines, but surprises never cease. Just as it reached the boat in which they were fishing, it took an upward flight for a goodly distance, when all at once down it came with a tremendous swoop, striking at Mr. Demilly, who sat in the bow of the boat, missing his head only by a hair's breadth. It made several other attacks, but was vigorously beaten off by the use of their fishing poles.

An ing*nious machine was recently exhibited to the postmaster general. It is an adaptation of the put-a-nickel-in-the-slot machine to the sale of postage stamps. A sheet of stamps is cut into slips the width of two stamps, and these slips are wound around a cylinder inside of the machine. A nickle is placed in the slot, which drops down, starts an electric current, which causes the stamp cylinder to revolve, the slip of stamps glides along and passes under a row of needles, which drops down cuts off two stamps. The owner of the nickel waits a few seconds after his money disappears and then shoves down a metalic button and two stamps make their appearance at an aperature in the lower part of the machine. It is proposed by the inventors to place these machines in stores and prominent places about the city.
